 - (iv) the new work is located within 20 metres of the original work, unless moving the bore further results in an improvement in environmental outcomes, and
 - (v) the new work is to replace an existing work licensed under Part 5 of the Water Act 1912;

Notwithstanding paragraph 6(iv), the Water Administration Ministerial Corporation may permit the location of the replacement works to exceed 20m from the original work when deemed necessary for the protection of the water shortage zone, its groundwater-dependent ecosystems and/or base flows in streams;

OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY ACT 2000Notice under clause 112A of Occupational Health and Safety Regulation 2001*Requirements for design registration of canopies on continuous miners

I, ROBERT REGAN, Chief Inspector under the Coal Mine Health and Safety Act 2002, pursuant to clause 112A of the Occupational Health and Safety Regulation 2001 (the Regulation), by this notice, specify the requirements set out in the Schedule below as the requirements that must be met prior to canopies on continuous miners used in underground mines at a coal workplace (referred to in this notice as canopies) being registered under Subdivision 1 of Division 3 of Part 5.2 (as modified by Schedule 4A) of the Regulation.

Dated this 29th day of January 2007.

ROBERT REGAN

Chief Inspector

NSW Department of Primary Industries

(by delegation)

Schedule1.0 DESIGN REQUIREMENTS

Canopies must be designed by a qualified practicing structural or mechanical engineer who is registered on the National Professional Engineers Register (administered by Engineers Australia) or a qualified practicing engineer acceptable to the chief inspector and must be designed in accordance with the relevant Australian Standards, good engineering practice and the following requirements.

1.1 Definitions

For the purpose of these requirements, the following definitions apply:

Canopy roof means the platework and any associated bracing commonly utilised to provide protection above the driver's enclosure

Lateral edge means the edge of the canopy roof usually located at 90 degrees to the centreline running from the head to the tail of the continuous miner.

longitudinal edge means the edge of the canopy roof usually located parallel to the centreline defined above

Support includes the support legs and any associated steel work, other than the canopy roof, which interconnects the support legs.

Support leg means the vertical or near vertical member connecting the continuous miner chassis or driver's enclosure to the canopy roof

1.2 Conceptual Aspects

In the event of the canopy being subjected to a fall of roof which exceeds the elastic limit of the canopy design then yielding should be progressive and limited to the extent that the driver can safely remain within the operator compartment i.e. 1000mm minimum headroom space remains between the seat and canopy roof.

Note: Consideration should be given to suspending the driver's seat from the underside of the canopy roof.

It is acknowledged that there are practical limitations in the design of canopies. However, each canopy design together with the operator compartment should endeavour to provide an enclosure which will prevent driver injury in the event of a fall from the roof.

The canopy design should consider access into the operator compartment and the driver's visibility in all directions particularly to the driver's front and rear and as far as reasonably practical to the sides.

1.3 Canopy Design Material and Loading Criteria

1.3.1 Materials

All main load bearing components used in the construction of protective canopies must be in accordance with Standards Australia AS 4100:1998 'Steel structures' as amended or AS 3990:1993 'Mechanical equipment – Steelwork'.

1.3.2 Welding

All welding carried out during the construction of protective canopies must be in accordance with AS 1554.21:2004, 'Structural steel welding – Welding of steel structure' and shall comply with Category SP welds.

All welded joints must be non-destructively examined in accordance with the above welding code.

There must be a minimum of four supports for the canopy roof.

It is preferred that the canopy roof be attached to the support legs by either bolted or welded-connections.

However, where pinned connections are used, maximum clearances must not exceed H7 and C9 to AS 1654.1:1995, 'ISO system of limits and fits'.

The base of the canopy support legs must be securely bolted or welded to the main frame of the continuous miner or driver enclosure.

The canopy roof must be constructed by utilising a substantial one piece solid plate devoid of uneven structural protrusions above the roof line (including cable support structures etc).

The design of the canopy roof and seat should be such that when the driver leans slightly to the right, as is customary by many drivers, the driver's head remains underneath the canopy roof.

2.0 TESTING CRITERIA

Continuous miner canopy load testing shall be undertaken in the presence of an independent competent person.

2.1 Vertical Load Test

The protective canopy is required to have a minimum structural capacity to support elastically a static uniform load of 8.2 tonnes or a force equivalent to a static load of 105 kilopascals distributed uniformly over the greatest plan view area of the canopy roof, whichever is the lesser.

An acceptable method of test provides for the test load to be distributed within the middle ninth of the roof's plan view area.

2.2 Horizontal Load Test

The protective canopy is required to have a minimum structural capacity to support elastically a static uniform load of two (2) tonnes applied horizontally to the edge of the canopy roof.

An acceptable method of test provides for the test load to be distributed along the middle third of the longitudinal and lateral edge of the roof separately.

The horizontal loading must be applied in both the longitudinal and lateral directions separately and the results must be satisfactory in both directions.

2.3 Permanent Set

For all the load tests as per 2.1 and 2.2 above, the permanent set shall be less than 10% of the maximum deflection measured with the load applied.

A dial indicator is suitable for measurement of the maximum deflection and the permanent set caused by the application of the test load.

Notes

1. A canopy will only be registered if it can elastically resist a minimum test load of 8.2 tonnes applied vertically and a minimum test load of 2.0 tonnes applied horizontally in both longitudinal and transverse directions independently.

2. Larger test loads should be considered by applicant where considered appropriate for conditions where canopy is to be used. The registration document will record the maximum load for which tests are successful.

3.1 Test Method

With canopy fully extended unless otherwise stated the following tests must be conducted:-

1. Apply vertical test load to middle ninth plan view area i.e. to one third span of width and length.

- a) For fixed type canopy apply preload of between 300-500 Kg to remove slack from joints, set dial indicator to zero then apply test load. Record deflection "A" under the test load and the residual deflection "B" on removal of the test load.

"B" divided by "A" must be less than 10% for the canopy to be satisfactory.

Note: It may be necessary to repeat this test or other tests in order to further eliminate any initial movement in pinned or bolted connections.

- b) For canopies initially supported by hydraulic cylinders measure pressure and load at hydraulic cylinders when full test load is applied then increase test load till cylinders yield, record yield pressure and load. Ensure that pressure relief system reseats when load is reduced i.e. reload a second time.

Note: If the yield testing of the hydraulics requires a load which is beyond the elastic limit of the canopy then separate bench testing of the hydraulics will be permitted.

With canopy lowered to its minimum height and oil removed from the support cylinders i.e. canopy resting on its mechanical stops apply test load and record deflections as for fixed canopy previously mentioned.

2. Re-extend canopy to maximum height and apply horizontal test load along the middle one third of the canopy edge directing the load away from the centreline of the machine.

Preload and deflection measurements are as in 1(a) above.

3. Repeat test 2 but with the load applied towards the centreline of the machine. This test is only necessary if there is a significant difference in the strength of the canopy supports between the 2 directions.

4. Apply horizontal test load along the middle one third of the canopy edge directing the load from the rear to the front of the machine.

Preload and deflection are as in 1(a) above. For canopies fitted with rear hydraulic cylinders the cylinder should not be the item that stops any upward movement that may occur i.e. a mechanical stop should prevent over extension of the canopy.

5. Repeat test 4 but with the load applied directed from the front to the back of the machine. This test is only necessary if there is a significant difference in the strength of the canopy supports between the 2 directions.

Note: Test 1(b) above is only applicable for canopies with hydraulic height adjustment where the support cylinders are required to elastically support the test load without pressure relief occurring. Canopies having different philosophy of hydraulic system design will require an alternative test procedure. This procedure will be determined by the Senior Inspector of Mechanical Engineering Department of Primary Industries, Mine Safety upon request.

OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY ACT 2000Notice under clause 112A of Occupational Health and Safety Regulation 2001*Requirements for design registration of shot firing apparatus used underground at a coal workplace

I, ROBERT REGAN, Chief Inspector under the Coal Mine Health and Safety Act 2002, pursuant to clause 112A of the Occupational Health and Safety Regulation 2001 (the Regulation), by this notice, specify the requirements set out in the Schedule below as the requirements that must be met prior to shotfiring apparatus used in underground mines at a coal workplace (referred to in this notice as shotfiring apparatus) being registered under Subdivision 1 of Division 3 of Part 5.2 (as modified by Schedule 4A) of the Regulation.

In this notice:

Shotfiring apparatus	is	a collective term encompassing circuit testers, exploders and exploder testing devices.
Exploder	means	a self-contained portable apparatus designed and constructed for producing an electric current for firing detonators.
Exploder tester	means	apparatus for testing the output characteristics of an exploder on a routine basis as a means of assessing its continued ability to perform its design duty.
Circuit tester	means	apparatus for testing the continuity and indicating the condition (resistance) of a detonator circuit.

Dated this 29th day of January 2007.

ROBERT REGAN
Chief Inspector
NSW Department of Primary Industries

Schedule1. Design and performance requirements

(1) The following tests must be carried out at intervals not exceeding five (5) years or whenever there is a change in the design or a change in the location or method of manufacture.

Note: Electrically powered shotfiring apparatus that are required for use in the hazardous zone must also meet the Chief Inspector's requirement for electrical plant.

(2) Only shotfiring apparatus that conforms to the following requirements in respect to construction and performance will be considered suitable for design registration and permitted for use underground at a coal workplace:

a) General shotfiring apparatus requirements

Shotfiring apparatus must be constructed to:

- (i) withstand without damage or impairment to correct operational performance the arduous nature of use below ground; and
- (ii) prevent its dismantling without the use of special tools; and
- (iii) provide an insulation resistance between the shotfiring circuit and the exploder case of greater than 50 M Ω at 1000 V when measured after conditioning for 24 hours in an ambient temperature of maximum 20 degrees C and relative humidity of at least 90%; and
- (iv) exclude external parts of the enclosure made of –
 - aluminium or
 - an aluminium alloy containing more than 15% by mass of aluminium, magnesium and titanium, provided that the content of magnesium and titanium does not exceed 6% by mass; and
- (v) if constructed of non-metallic materials, be suitably anti-static or be contained within a leather carrying case having provision to prevent its unauthorized removal; and
- (vi) provide means of carrying that does not involve the use of hand. This may be incorporated on a case provided to contain the shotfiring apparatus; and
- (vii) display any essential operating and safety instructions via inscription on the apparatus.

b) Specific requirements for Exploders

Only exploders that conform to the following requirements in respect to construction and performance (in addition to the general requirements of clause 1(1) above) will be considered suitable for design registration and permitted for use underground at a coal workplace. Exploders must be constructed to:

- (i) limit shot firing capacity to 100 or less shots and be prominently inscribed with the shot limit; and
- (ii) where integrated with a continuity circuit testers, have a circuit tester which conforms with the requirements of clause 1(2)(c) below, in respect to the construction and performance of the circuit tester. The exploder circuits must also be adequately segregated from the circuit tester and prevent electrical leakage and/or interference to the circuit tester circuits; and

- (iii) initiate the firing current only by operation of a key or similar device. It must be possible to remove this key or other initiation device only in the “off” or “safe” position; and
- (iv) provide a mechanism that causes the firing key to return to the off position, when not physically held in the alternate position or contain equivalent safety features; and
- (v) provide output connection terminals that allow a convenient and secure attachment of the shotfiring cable and are arranged so that the exploder can be operated without making contact with the output connections; and
- (vi) allow the firing sequence to be abandoned at any point up to the final firing position without producing an output greater than 50 milliamperes; and
- (vii) ensure that removal of the firing handle / key causes all stored energy within the exploder, excluding supply batteries, to discharge within 12 milliseconds; and
- (viii) ensure capacitor-discharge type exploders prevent electric current being available to the output terminals until the capacitor is adequately charged and when fired provide a 4 milliseconds burst of firing current at 1.25 amperes \pm 15%; and
- (ix) ensure rotating armature excited type exploders provide an RMS current that achieves 1.6 amperes and sustain an output current of 1.4 amperes for at least 1 millisecond; and
- (x) after initiation of the firing output, limit the output in the shotfiring circuit so that no firing currents exist for greater than 5 milliseconds and that no energy greater than two thirds of Group I intrinsically safe ignition energy exist after 12 milliseconds; and
- (xi) provide the required firing current with a connected resistance of $2.2n + 4L$ ohms, where n is the number of shots the unit is rated to fire and L is the number of 100 metre lengths (for test purposes L shall equal 12); and
- (xii) prevent any possible manipulation of the firing controls to produce a firing output less than specified in paragraph (xi); and
- (xiii) once fired, prevent additional firing charge being produced before the firing control is returned to the “off” position; and
- (xiv) ensure no output higher than continuity test levels is available at the firing terminals, when malfunction of less than three components occurs. For the purpose of this paragraph malfunction includes mechanical or electrical maloperation of a switch, an earth fault on any part of the equipment, and an open circuit or short circuit occurring on any component or any part of the electrical circuit; and
- (xv) ensure that any circuit or component contained within the exploder that produces open sparking during normal operation is intrinsically safe or contains equivalent explosion protection safeguards; and

- (xvi) provide a test function, or test accessory, that unambiguously verifies a healthy exploder output.

c) Specific requirements for circuit testers

Only circuit testers that conform to the following requirements in respect to construction and performance shall be considered suitable for design registration and permitted for use underground at a coal workplace. Circuit tester must be constructed to:

- (i) be intrinsically safe, as defined in AS/NZS 60079.0:2005 Electrical apparatus for explosive gas atmospheres for Group I applications; and
- (ii) be incapable of firing a low tension detonator, that is a maximum short-circuit current output of less than 50 milliamperes; and
- (iii) be reliable in performance, accurate to 1 ohm or within 5% of true resistance and capable of indicating the condition of a detonator circuit and provide a suitable range to indicate an external resistance exceeding $3n$ ohms, where n is the maximum number of detonators the exploder is designed to fire; and
- (iv) ensure the electrical circuit is adequately insulated from the outer case; and
- (v) where housed within the same enclosure as the exploder ignition circuit, be constructed with adequate segregation to prevent electrical leakage or interference from a charged exploder circuit transferring to the terminals of the circuit tester. Simultaneous operation of the circuit tester and exploder output must be inhibited and fail safe design.

2. Testing requirements

(1) The following examinations and tests shall be carried out on a sample of the shotfiring apparatus to ensure compliance with the above requirements:

- (i) Each item of shotfiring apparatus and associated documentation will be examined to ensure compliance with manufacturing drawings and design requirements; and
- (ii) Each item of shotfiring apparatus will be subjected to drop tests from heights of 1 metre onto a concrete floor. Each test will be carried out five times and as a result of each test the safety of the exploder is not to be impaired physically or electrically; and
- (iii) Each item of shotfiring apparatus will be subjected to a vertical impact test with energy of 20 joules. As a result of this test the shotfiring apparatus must not sustain mechanical damage likely to affect the safe operation of the equipment; and
- (iv) Each item of shotfiring apparatus case will be subject to suitable testing to ensure a degree of protection of not less than IP54; and
- (v) The correct functioning of each item of shotfiring apparatus will be checked to ensure compliance with appropriate requirements of section 1 (a) to (c).

- (2) All testing and assessment must be carried out by:
- (i) a laboratory in Australia that is accredited by the National Association of Testing Authorities Australia (NATA), or
 - (ii) an equivalent organisation acceptable to the Chief Inspector.

3. Registration assessment

The following documents must be provided for assessment with the application under clause 107 of the Regulation for registration of plant design:

- a) a technical description and specification of the apparatus; and
- b) an explanation of the manner of operation and the intended field of use of the apparatus; and

CONTAMINATED LAND MANAGEMENT ACT 1997

Environment Protection Authority

Declaration of Remediation Site
(Section 21 of the Contaminated Land Management Act 1997)

Declaration Number 21103; Area UB 3143.

THE Environment Protection Authority (EPA) declares the following land to be a remediation site under the Contaminated Land Management Act 1997 ("the Act"):

1. Land to which this declaration applies ("the site"):

The site is currently used for the manufacturing of bituminous products and is located at 33-35 Violet Street Revesby being Lot C of DP 379430 in the local government area of Bankstown City Council.

A drawing showing the land to which this declaration applies can be viewed on the public register at www.epa.nsw.gov.au/clm/aboutregister.aspx or can be inspected at the offices of the Department of Environment and Conservation at Level 14, 59-61 Goulburn Street, Sydney.

2. Nature of the substances causing the contamination

In areas of the site there are contaminants in the near-surface soil and in the groundwater. These include volatile organic compounds (VOC) particularly in the form of toluene, ethyl benzene and xylene; alcohols and ketones; volatile chlorinated hydrocarbons (VHC) and to a lesser degree, naphthalene.

3. Nature of harm that the substance may cause

The EPA has considered the matters in s.9 of the Act and determined that the site is contaminated in such a way as to present a significant risk of harm for the following reasons:

- VOC and VHC including known carcinogens are present in groundwater at concentrations significantly exceeding the guideline values for the protection of aquatic ecosystems;
- There is potential for VOC and VHC to migrate beyond the boundaries of the site through groundwater flow. Regional groundwater is likely to flow towards the Georges River located approximately 3 km from the site.

4. Further action under the Act

The making of this declaration does not prevent the carrying out of a voluntary remediation of the site and any person may submit a voluntary remediation proposal for the site to the EPA. If the proposal satisfies the requirements of s.26 of the Act, the EPA may agree not to issue a remediation order to the person or persons bringing the proposal.

5. Submissions invited

The public may make written submissions to the EPA on:

- Whether the EPA should issue a remediation order in relation to the site; or
- Any other matter concerning the site.

Submissions should be made in writing to:

Manager, Contaminated Sites
Department of Environment and Conservation
PO Box A290, Sydney South NSW 1232.

or faxed to (02) 9995 5930

by not later than 23 February 2007.

NIALL JOHNSTON,
Acting Manager,
Contaminated Sites,
Department of Environment and Conservation
(by delegation)

Dated: 23 January 2007.

Note:

Remediation order may follow

If remediation of the site or part of the site is required, the EPA may issue a remediation order under s.23 of the Act.

Variation/Revocation

This declaration may be varied by subsequent declarations. It remains in force until it is otherwise revoked. A declaration may only be revoked when the EPA does not have reasonable grounds to believe that land is contaminated in such a way as to present a significant risk of harm (s.44 of the Act).

Information recorded by the EPA

Section 58 of the Contaminated Land Management Act 1997 requires the EPA to maintain a public record. A copy of this remediation declaration will be included in the public record.

Information recorded by councils

Section 59 of the Act requires the EPA to give a copy of this declaration to the relevant local council. The council is then required to note on its planning certificate issued pursuant to s.149 (2) of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act that the land is currently within a remediation site. The EPA is required to notify council as soon as practicable when the declaration is no longer in force and the notation on the s.149 (2) certificate is no longer required.

Relationship to other regulatory instrument

This declaration does not affect the provisions of any relevant environmental planning instruments which apply to the land or provisions of any other environmental protection legislation administered by the EPA.
