Resource Recovery Order under Part 9, Clause 93 of the Protection of the Environment Operations (Waste) Regulation 2014

The mulch order 2016

Introduction

This order, issued by the Environment Protection Authority (EPA) under clause 93 of the Protection of the Environment Operations (Waste) Regulation 2014 (Waste Regulation), imposes the requirements that must be met by suppliers of mulch to which 'the mulch exemption 2016' applies. The requirements in this order apply to the supply of mulch for application to land as a soil amendment. Please refer to 'guidance on mulch' for further information on the requirements of this order.

1. Waste to which this order applies

- 1.1. This order applies to mulch. In this order, mulch means plant material shredded and/or screened to a preferred particle size grading for particular applications. Mulch, by virtue of the nature and source of the plant material, must pose minimal risk of the presence of physical and chemical contaminants.¹

Mulch may include urban wood residues and forestry and sawmill residues. Mulch does not include plant material from kerbside waste collections.

2. Persons to whom this order applies

- 2.1. The requirements in this order apply, as relevant, to any person who supplies mulch that has been generated, processed or recovered by the person.
- 2.2. This order does not apply to the supply of mulch to a consumer for land application at a premises for which the consumer holds a licence under the POEO Act that authorises the carrying out of the scheduled activities on the premises under clause 39 'waste disposal (application to land)' or clause 40 'waste disposal (thermal treatment)' of Schedule 1 of the POEO Act.

3. Duration

- 3.1. This order commences on 25 July 2016 and is valid until revoked by the EPA by notice published in the Government Gazette.

¹ Where there is a significant risk of the presence of physical and chemical contaminants in plant material, such as from kerbside waste collections, this waste stream must be assessed against and comply with the conditions of 'the pasteurised garden organics order 2016'.

4. Revocation

- 4.1. 'The raw mulch order 2014' which commenced on 24 November 2014 is revoked from 25 July 2016.

5. Processor requirements

The EPA imposes the following requirements on any processor who supplies mulch.

General conditions

- 5.1. On or before supplying mulch, the processor must ensure that:
- 5.1.1. the mulch does not contain asbestos, engineered wood products, preservative treated or coated wood residues, or physical contaminants, including but not limited to glass, metal, rigid plastics, flexible plastics, or polystyrene.
 - 5.1.2. the mulch is ready for land application.
- 5.2. The processor must not supply mulch that contains any weed, disease or pest to a consumer for land application in an environmentally sensitive area.

Risk management protocol for land application

- 5.3. On or before supplying mulch, with the exception of mulch that is comprised only of urban wood residues and sawmill and forestry residues, the processor must:
- 5.3.1. have a written risk management protocol in place. The risk management protocol must be written in accordance with clause 6.1 to 6.4.
 - 5.3.2. ensure that all relevant measures required of the processor by the risk management protocol and this order are implemented and complied with.
- 5.4. The risk management protocol must be reviewed, at a minimum, every two years to verify it is fit for purpose and to ensure continuous improvement.

Notification

- 5.5. On or before each transaction, the processor must provide the following to each consumer:
- All relevant written measures required of the consumer by the risk management protocol and this order.

Record keeping and reporting

- 5.6. The processor must keep a written record of the following for a period of six years:
- the risk management protocol, including all supporting documentation, required to be prepared under clause 5.3; and
 - the assessment described in clause 6.4 (including the scientific or common name and extent of any weed, disease or pest detected).
- 5.7. The processor must provide, on request, any written records required to be kept under clause 5.6 for that mulch supplied to the consumer of the mulch.
- 5.8. The processor must notify the EPA within seven days of becoming aware that it has not complied with any requirement in clause 5.1 to 5.5.

6. Risk management protocol requirements

- 6.1. The risk management protocol must contain measures that minimise the potential for the land application of mulch to cause:
 - harm to the environment; and
 - the introduction, presence, spread or increase of any weed, disease or pest.
- 6.2. The risk management protocol must include the following:
 - 6.2.1. A version, date and signature of approval.
 - 6.2.2. A scope, including a description of the activity, geographic location, the source plant material and land application site.
- 6.3. The risk management protocol must, at a minimum, consider the following and contain sufficient information to demonstrate compliance with clause 6.1:
 - 6.3.1. The location of the source plant material, such as the address and paddock or plot identification.
 - 6.3.2. The method of mulch generation and how this affects the composition of the mulch.
 - 6.3.3. The scheduling of mulch generation taking into account the potential presence of plant propagules and the seasonal growth of plant material.
 - 6.3.4. The location of the land application site, such as the address and paddock or plot identification, and its proximity to the location of the source plant material.
 - 6.3.5. The time interval between the assessment of the plant material prior to mulch generation, the mulch generation and the land application of the mulch.
 - 6.3.6. The effect of the mulch on the land application site and surrounding environment.
 - 6.3.7. Which assessment, as outlined in clause 6.4, is required for the land application site, plant material and/or mulch, and when this assessment should occur.
 - 6.3.8. The circumstances under which mulch that contains any weed, disease or pest may be supplied to a consumer for land application (other than in an environmentally sensitive area).
 - 6.3.9. Risk mitigation strategies including, but not limited to, hygiene procedures or training and education implemented by the processor.
- 6.4. The risk management protocol must require an assessment and the recording of the scientific or common name and extent of any weed, disease or pest detected according to the following requirements.
 - 6.4.1. If the land application site is not in an environmentally sensitive area:
 - before mulch generation, a person that has demonstrated competency in identifying weeds, diseases or pests significant to their enterprise must carry out a visual assessment of the source plant material to determine the presence of any weed, disease or pest; or
 - after mulch generation, a suitably qualified professional must carry out an assessment of the location where the plant material was sourced and the mulch to determine the presence of any weed, disease or pest.

6.4.2. If the land application site is in an environmentally sensitive area:

- before mulch generation, a person that has achieved Australian Qualifications Framework Units AHCPMG301A (Control weeds), AHCPMG302A (Control plant pests, diseases and disorders), or AHCPMG303A (Identify plant specimens), or an equivalent qualification, must carry out a visual assessment of the source plant material to determine the presence of any weed, disease or pest.

Notes

The EPA may amend or revoke this order at any time. It is the responsibility of each processor to ensure it complies with all relevant requirements of the most current order. The current version of this order will be available on www.epa.nsw.gov.au.

In gazetting or otherwise issuing this order, the EPA is not in any way endorsing the supply or use of this substance or guaranteeing that the substance will confer benefit.

The conditions set out in this order are designed to minimise the risk of potential harm to the environment, human health or agriculture, although neither this order nor the accompanying exemption guarantee that the environment, human health or agriculture will not be harmed.

Any person or entity which supplies mulch should assess whether the material is fit for the purpose the material is proposed to be used for, and whether this use may cause harm. The supplier may need to seek expert scientific or technical advice.

Regardless of any exemption or order provided by the EPA, the person who causes or permits the application of the substance to land must ensure that the action is lawful and consistent with any other legislative requirements including, if applicable, any development consent(s) for managing operations on the site(s).

The transport, supply and land application of mulch remains subject to additional relevant legislation. In the POEO Act and Waste Regulation, for example, a person who pollutes land (s. 142A) or water (s. 120), or causes air pollution through the emission of odours (s. 126), or does not meet the special requirements for asbestos waste (Part 7 of the Waste Regulation), regardless of this order, is guilty of an offence and subject to prosecution. Also, the requirements of other legislation must be met including, but not limited to, the Plant Diseases Act 1924, Noxious Weed Act 1993 and Threatened Species Conservation Act 1996.

Whilst this order requires that the mulch must not contain engineered wood products or physical contaminants including but not limited to glass, metal, rigid plastics, flexible plastics, or polystyrene, the EPA recognises that the mulch may contain extremely low and incidental amounts of engineered wood products and / or physical contaminants. The processor must implement procedures to prevent the presence of engineered wood products and physical contaminants in the mulch. These procedures must be formally documented and their implementation demonstrated. However, as noted in this order, the mulch must not contain any asbestos, or preservative treated or coated wood residues.

Source plant material to be land applied in an environmentally sensitive area must be assessed, at a minimum, by a person that has achieved Australian Qualifications Framework Units AHCPMG301A (Control weeds), AHCPMG302A (Control plant pests, diseases and disorders), or AHCPMG303A (Identify plant specimens), or an equivalent qualification. However, where possible, the EPA recommends the diagnosis and assessment of plant health be carried out by a person that has achieved AHCPMG501A (Diagnose plant health problems) or AHCARB503A (Diagnose tree diseases), or an equivalent qualification.

Failure to comply with the conditions of this order constitutes an offence under clause 93 of the Waste Regulation.

Notes

The EPA may amend or revoke this exemption at any time. It is the responsibility of the consumer to ensure they comply with all relevant requirements of the most current exemption. The current version of this exemption will be available on www.epa.nsw.gov.au

In gazetting or otherwise issuing this exemption, the EPA is not in any way endorsing the use of this substance or guaranteeing that the substance will confer benefit.

The conditions set out in this exemption are designed to minimise the risk of potential harm to the environment, human health or agriculture, although neither this exemption nor the accompanying order guarantee that the environment, human health or agriculture will not be harmed.

The consumer should assess whether or not the mulch is fit for the purpose the material is proposed to be used for, and whether this use will cause harm. The consumer may need to seek expert scientific or technical advice.

Regardless of any exemption or order provided by the EPA, the person who causes or permits the application of the substance to land must ensure that the action is lawful and consistent with any other legislative requirements including, if applicable, any development consent(s) for managing operations on the site(s).

The transport, supply and land application of mulch remains subject to additional relevant legislation. In the POEO Act and Waste Regulation, for example, a person who pollutes land (s. 142A) or water (s. 120), or causes air pollution through the emission of odours (s. 126), or does not meet the special requirements for asbestos waste (Part 7 of the Waste Regulation), regardless of this order, is guilty of an offence and subject to prosecution. Also, the requirements of other legislation must be met including, but not limited to, the Plant Diseases Act 1924, Noxious Weed Act 1993 and Threatened Species Conservation Act 1995.

Failure to comply with the conditions of this exemption constitutes an offence under clause 91 of the Waste Regulation.

Whilst 'the mulch order 2016' requires that the mulch must not contain engineered wood products or physical contaminants including but not limited to glass, metal, rigid plastics, flexible plastics, or polystyrene, the EPA recognises that the mulch may contain extremely low and incidental amounts of engineered wood products and / or physical contaminants. The processor must implement procedures to prevent the presence of engineered wood products and / or physical contaminants in the mulch. These procedures must be formally documented and their implementation demonstrated. However, as noted in 'the mulch order 2016', the mulch must not contain any asbestos, or preservative treated or coated wood residues.

Mulch is typically applied to land as a soil amendment at depths of 50 – 100mm. While there are specific applications that may require a greater depth than 100mm, the EPA considers the reasonable application of mulch to be no greater than 200mm.

Adverse environmental impacts are associated with the land application of mulch such as the spreading of weeds, diseases, and pests. The EPA recommends a distance of at least 100m be maintained between the land upon which mulch is applied and environmentally sensitive areas.

Mulch that meets the conditions of this exemption should be applied to land by the consumer within 2 weeks of being received. Where there are extenuating circumstances the mulch should be land applied within 4 weeks. The EPA considers that 6 weeks would be the absolute limit in all circumstances.

6. Definitions

In this order:

animal waste means dead animals and animal parts and any mixture of dead animals and animal parts.

application or apply to land means applying to land by:

- spraying, spreading or depositing on the land;
- ploughing, injecting or mixing into the land; or
- filling, raising, reclaiming or contouring the land.

composting means a process of managed biological transformation:

(a) to achieve pasteurisation; and

(b) for a period of not less than a total of 6 weeks of composting and curing at an adequate moisture level (>40 % by weight), and/or until an equivalent level of biological stability can be demonstrated.

Composting does not include drying or dehydration processes.

consumer means a person who applies, or intends to apply, compost to land.

corrosive means a substance having properties that may damage or destroy living organisms and components of the soil, including soil organic matter. Commonly this includes strong acids and strong bases, or weak acids and weak bases occurring in concentrated form.

drying or dehydration processes are those that use externally supplied energy to heat and ventilate food wastes (or any other compostable waste) in order to rapidly dry the waste material over a short time period (typically 24 to 48 hours), either with or without the addition of an inoculum. This is distinct from those processes of managed biological transformation that use heat generated by the aerobic microorganisms that are responsible for decomposition under moist conditions during pasteurisation and composting, and traditional forced aeration composting methods such as aerated static pile composting.

engineered wood products means engineered, painted, treated or composite wood products such as particleboard, oriented strand board, plywood, laminated veneer lumber, glulam or fibreboard that are manufactured with glues, resins, water repellents, fire retardants, fungal inhibitors and/or other chemicals.

food waste means waste from the manufacture, preparation, sale or consumption of food but does not include grease trap waste or animal waste, and must not be corrosive.

forestry and sawmill residues are untreated and uncontaminated plant materials from forestry operations such as logging, silviculture and sawmilling. Forestry and sawmill residues include materials such as bark, woodchip, sawdust and wood fibre that are collected as a source separated material stream for processing.

garden organics means plant material that by virtue of the nature and source of the material poses a risk of the presence of physical and chemical contaminants. Garden organics includes material from kerbside waste collections. Garden organics must not contain asbestos, engineered wood products, or preservative treated or coated wood residues.

manure means faecal matter generated by any animal other than humans and includes any mixture of animal faecal matter and biodegradable animal bedding such as straw or sawdust.

mulch means plant material shredded and/or screened to a preferred particle size grading for particular applications. Mulch, by virtue of the nature and source of the plant material, must pose minimal risk of the presence of physical and chemical contaminants. Mulch may include urban wood residues and forestry and sawmill residues. Mulch does not include plant material from kerbside waste collections. Mulch must not contain asbestos, engineered wood products, preservative treated or coated wood residues, or physical contaminants, including but not limited to glass, metal, rigid plastics, flexible plastics, or polystyrene.

pasteurisation means a process to significantly reduce the numbers of plant and animal pathogens and plant propagules. Pasteurisation requires that the entire mass of organic material be subjected to either of the following:

- (a) Appropriate turning of outer material to the inside of the windrow so that the whole mass is subjected to a minimum of 3 turns with the internal temperature reaching a minimum of 55°C for 3 consecutive days before each turn. Where materials with a higher risk of containing pathogens are present, including but not limited to manure and food waste, the core temperature of the material mass should be maintained at 55°C or higher for 15 days or longer, and during this period the windrow should be turned a minimum of 5 times.
- (b) An alternative process of pasteurisation that guarantees the same level of pathogen reduction, and the reduction of plant propagules as in (a). Any such alternative process must be clearly defined in writing and validated by a suitably qualified person before claiming compliance with this order. A written record of the validation report must be kept for a minimum period of six years.

paunch means the undigested food contained in the stomach of ruminant animals. This is generally considered to include partially digested grass, hay and other feed products such as grain.

preservative treated or coated wood residues means wood residues that are preservative treated with chemicals such as copper chrome arsenate (CCA), high temperature creosote (HTC), pigmented emulsified creosote (PEC) and light organic solvent preservative (LOSP) and/or coated with substances such as varnish or paint.

processor means a person who processes, mixes, blends, or otherwise incorporates compost into a material in its final form for supply to a consumer.

urban wood residues means untreated, unpainted, and uncontaminated urban derived timber and wood material that is collected as a separate material stream for processing. Urban wood residues include materials such as off-cuts, saw dust, wood shavings, packaging crates and pallets.

Notes

The EPA may amend or revoke this order at any time. It is the responsibility of each processor to ensure it complies with all relevant requirements of the most current order. The current version of this order will be available on www.epa.nsw.gov.au

In gazetting or otherwise issuing this order, the EPA is not in any way endorsing the supply or use of this substance or guaranteeing that the substance will confer benefit.

The conditions set out in this order are designed to minimise the risk of potential harm to the environment, human health or agriculture, although neither this order nor the accompanying exemption guarantee that the environment, human health or agriculture will not be harmed.

Any person or entity which supplies compost should assess whether the material is fit for the purpose the material is proposed to be used for, and whether this use may cause harm. The supplier may need to seek expert scientific or technical advice.

Regardless of any exemption or order provided by the EPA, the person who causes or permits the application of the substance to land must ensure that the action is lawful and consistent with any other legislative requirements including, if applicable, any development consent(s) for managing operations on the site(s).

The supply of compost remains subject to other relevant environmental regulations in the POEO Act and Waste Regulation. For example, a person who pollutes land (s. 142A) or water (s. 120), or causes air pollution through the emission of odours (s. 126), or does not meet the special requirements for asbestos waste (Part 7 of the Waste Regulation), regardless of this order, is guilty of an offence and subject to prosecution.

This order does not alter the requirements of any other relevant legislation that must be met in supplying this material, including for example, the need to prepare a Safety Data Sheet (SDS).

Whilst this order requires that compost must not contain engineered wood products, the EPA recognises that the compost may contain extremely low and incidental amounts of engineered wood products. The processor must implement procedures to prevent the presence of engineered wood products in the compost. These procedures must be formally documented and their implementation demonstrated. However, as noted in this order, compost must not contain any asbestos, or preservative treated or coated wood residues.

This order does not require sampling and testing of compost for biological stability and maturity. However the EPA strongly encourages the supply of compost that contains stable organic matter content, and an absence of phytotoxic compounds and pathogens. Immature and poorly stabilised compost can potentially generate offensive odours, contain viable plant propagules and cause initial adverse impacts on plant growth following land application.

Failure to comply with the conditions of this order constitutes an offence under clause 93 of the Waste Regulation.

- (a) to achieve pasteurisation; and
- (b) for a period of not less than a total of 6 weeks of composting and curing at an adequate moisture level (>40 % by weight), and/or until an equivalent level of biological stability can be demonstrated.

Composting does not include drying or dehydration processes.

consumer means a person who applies, or intends to apply, compost to land.

corrosive means a substance having properties that may damage or destroy living organisms and components of the soil, including soil organic matter. Commonly this includes strong acids and strong bases, or weak acids and weak bases occurring in concentrated form.

drying or dehydration processes are those that use externally supplied energy to heat and ventilate food wastes (or any other compostable waste) in order to rapidly dry the waste material over a short time period (typically 24 to 48 hours), either with or without the addition of an inoculum. This is distinct from those processes of managed biological transformation that use heat generated by the aerobic microorganisms that are responsible for decomposition under moist conditions during pasteurisation and composting, and traditional forced aeration composting methods such as aerated static pile composting.

engineered wood products means engineered, painted, treated or composite wood products such as particleboard, oriented strand board, plywood, laminated veneer lumber, glulam or fibreboard that are manufactured with glues, resins, water repellents, fire retardants, fungal inhibitors and/or other chemicals.

food waste means waste from the manufacture, preparation, sale or consumption of food but does not include grease trap waste or animal waste, and must not be corrosive.

forestry and sawmill residues are untreated and uncontaminated plant materials from forestry operations such as logging, silviculture and sawmilling. Forestry and sawmill residues include materials such as bark, woodchip, sawdust and wood fibre that are collected as a source separated material stream for processing.

garden organics means plant material that by virtue of the nature and source of the material poses a risk of the presence of physical and chemical contaminants. Garden organics includes material from kerbside waste collections. Garden organics must not contain asbestos, engineered wood products or preservative treated or coated wood residues.

manure means faecal matter generated by any animal other than humans and includes any mixture of animal faecal matter and biodegradable animal bedding such as straw or sawdust.

mulch means plant material shredded and/or screened to a preferred particle size grading for particular applications. Mulch, by virtue of the nature and source of the plant material, must pose minimal risk of the presence of physical and chemical contaminants. Mulch may include urban wood residues and forestry and sawmill residues. Mulch does not include plant material from kerbside waste collections. Mulch must not contain asbestos, engineered wood products, preservative treated or coated wood residues, or physical contaminants, including but not limited to glass, metal, rigid plastics, flexible plastics, or polystyrene.

pasteurisation means a process to significantly reduce the numbers of plant and animal pathogens and plant propagules. Pasteurisation requires that the entire mass of organic material be subjected to either of the following:

- (a) Appropriate turning of outer material to the inside of the windrow so that the whole mass is subjected to a minimum of 3 turns with the internal temperature reaching a minimum of 55°C for 3 consecutive days before each turn. Where materials with a higher risk of containing pathogens are present, including but not limited to manure and food waste, the core temperature of the material mass should be maintained at 55°C or higher for 15 days or longer, and during this period the windrow should be turned a minimum of 5 times.

- (b) An alternative process of pasteurisation that guarantees the same level of pathogen reduction, and the reduction of plant propagules as in (a). Any such alternative process must be clearly defined in writing and validated by a suitably qualified person prior to claiming compliance with this order. A written record of the validation report must be kept for a minimum period of six years.

paunch means the undigested food contained in the stomach of ruminant animals. This is generally considered to include partially digested grass, hay and other feed products such as grain.

processor means a person who processes, mixes, blends, or otherwise incorporates compost into a material in its final form for supply to a consumer.

preservative treated or coated wood residues means wood residues that are preservative treated with chemicals such as copper chrome arsenate (CCA), high temperature creosote (HTC), pigmented emulsified creosote (PEC) and light organic solvent preservative (LOSP) and/or coated with substances such as varnish or paint.

urban wood residues means untreated, unpainted, and uncontaminated urban derived timber and wood material that is collected as a separate material stream for processing. Urban wood residues include materials such as off-cuts, saw dust, wood shavings, packaging crates and pallets.

Notes

The EPA may amend or revoke this exemption at any time. It is the responsibility of the consumer to ensure they comply with all relevant requirements of the most current exemption. The current version of this exemption will be available on www.epa.nsw.gov.au

In gazetting or otherwise issuing this exemption, the EPA is not in any way endorsing the use of this substance or guaranteeing that the substance will confer benefit.

The conditions set out in this exemption are designed to minimise the risk of potential harm to the environment, human health or agriculture, although neither this exemption nor the accompanying order guarantee that the environment, human health or agriculture will not be harmed.

The consumer should assess whether or not the compost is fit for the purpose the material is proposed to be used for, and whether this use will cause harm. The consumer may need to seek expert scientific or technical advice.

Regardless of any exemption provided by the EPA, the person who causes or permits the application of the substance to land must ensure that the action is lawful and consistent with any other legislative requirements including, if applicable, any development consent(s) for managing operations on the site(s).

The receipt of compost remains subject to other relevant environmental regulations in the POEO Act and the Waste Regulation. For example, a person who pollutes land (s. 142A) or water (s. 120), or causes air pollution through the emission of odours (s. 126), or does not meet the special requirements for asbestos waste (Part 7 of the Waste Regulation), regardless of having an exemption, is guilty of an offence and subject to prosecution.

This exemption does not alter the requirements of any other relevant legislation that must be met in utilising this material, including for example, the need to prepare a Safety Data Sheet (SDS).

Whilst the 'the compost order 2016' requires that compost must not contain engineered wood products, the EPA recognises that compost may contain extremely low and incidental amounts of engineered wood products. The processor must implement procedures to prevent the presence of engineered wood products in the compost. These procedures must be formally documented and their implementation demonstrated. However, as noted in 'the compost order 2016', compost must not contain any asbestos, or preservative treated or coated wood residues.

'The compost order 2016' does not require sampling and testing of compost for biological stability and maturity. However the EPA strongly encourages the land application of compost that contains stable organic matter content and an absence of phytotoxic compounds and pathogens. Immature and poorly stabilised compost can potentially generate offensive odours, contain viable plant propagules and cause initial adverse impacts on plant growth following land application.

Compost that meets the conditions of this exemption should be applied to land by the consumer within 2 weeks of being received. Where there are extenuating circumstances the compost should be land applied within 4 weeks. The EPA considers that 6 weeks would be the absolute limit in all circumstances.

Failure to comply with the conditions of this exemption constitutes an offence under clause 91 of the Waste Regulation.

Resource Recovery Order under Part 9, Clause 93 of the Protection of the Environment Operations (Waste) Regulation 2014

The pasteurised garden organics order 2016

2. Persons to whom this order applies

- 2.1. The requirements in this order apply, as relevant, to any person who supplies pasteurised garden organics that has been generated, processed or recovered by the person.
- 2.2. This order does not apply to the supply of pasteurised garden organics to a consumer for land application at a premises for which the consumer holds a licence under the POEO Act that authorises the carrying out of the scheduled activities on the premises under clause 39 'waste disposal (application to land)' or clause 40 'waste disposal (thermal treatment)' of Schedule 1 of the POEO Act.

3. Duration

Notes

The EPA may amend or revoke this order at any time. It is the responsibility of each processor to ensure it complies with all relevant requirements of the most current order. The current version of this order will be available on www.epa.nsw.gov.au

In gazetting or otherwise issuing this order, the EPA is not in any way endorsing the supply or use of this substance or guaranteeing that the substance will confer benefit.

The conditions set out in this order are designed to minimise the risk of potential harm to the environment, human health or agriculture, although neither this order nor the accompanying exemption guarantee that the environment, human health or agriculture will not be harmed.

Any person or entity which supplies pasteurised garden organics should assess whether the material is fit for the purpose the material is proposed to be used for, and whether this use may cause harm. The supplier may need to seek expert scientific or technical advice.

Regardless of any exemption or order provided by the EPA, the person who causes or permits the application of the substance to land must ensure that the action is lawful and consistent with any other legislative requirements including, if applicable, any development consent(s) for managing operations on the site(s).

The supply of pasteurised garden organics remains subject to other relevant environmental regulations in the POEO Act and Waste Regulation. For example, a person who pollutes land (s. 142A) or water (s. 120), or causes air pollution through the emission of odours (s. 126), or does not meet the special requirements for asbestos waste (Part 7 of the Waste Regulation), regardless of this order, is guilty of an offence and subject to prosecution.

This order does not alter the requirements of any other relevant legislation that must be met in supplying this material, including for example, the need to prepare a Safety Data Sheet (SDS).

The EPA considers pasteurisation the minimum treatment to significantly reduce the numbers of plant and animal pathogens and plant propagules. However the EPA recommends full composting of mulch and/or garden organics to achieve maximum biological transformation.

Whilst this order requires that pasteurised garden organics must not contain engineered wood products, the EPA recognises that the pasteurised garden organics may contain extremely low and incidental amounts of engineered wood products. The processor must implement procedures to prevent the presence of engineered wood products in the pasteurised garden organics. These procedures must be formally documented and their implementation apparent. However, as noted in this order pasteurised garden organics must not contain any asbestos, or preservative treated or coated wood residues.

Failure to comply with the conditions of this order constitutes an offence under clause 93 of the Waste Regulation.

Forestry and sawmill residues include materials such as bark, woodchip, sawdust and wood fibre that are collected as a source separated material stream for processing.

garden organics means plant material that by virtue of the nature and source of the material poses a risk of the presence of physical and chemical contaminants. Garden organics includes material from kerbside waste collections. Garden organics must not contain asbestos, engineered wood products or preservative treated or coated wood residues.
